Yu Cui received her M.D. and Ph.D. degrees, in 2008 and 2019 respectively, from, Sichuan University, China.

From 2011 to present, she worked for Chengdu Women's and Children's Central Hospital in Chengdu, China. And she is the vice director of the Department of Anesthesiology.

In 2014, she went to Mount Sinai Hospital as a visiting scholar to study pediatric anesthesia. From 2018 to 2019, she went to Vanderbilt University Medical Center to learn about the application of machine learning in healthcare.

Her general research interests are in the area of machine learning. In particular, her current research focuses on deep learning in perioperative pediatrics. She has published about 30 papers in the field of pediatric anesthesia.